LETTER FROM NEW YORK

NEW YORK, November 15, 1878. A large number of eminent and reverend well known ciergymen, and the object of the manner of such coming of Christ—whether it is to be pre-millennial or past-millennial—and the manner of such coming, and the time, and the manner of such coming, and the time, and various other questions of equal interest and importance connected with the second advent. Each reverend and learned gentleman has no doubt settled all these matters entirely like the set of the time, and the reverend and learned gentleman has no doubt settled all these matters entirely like the set of the anti-Tammany and he sees no fun in the joke of the anti-Tammany like time between rubbing off the war paint and feeling round to fun out whather he be awake or dreaming, and the time, was elected. And now there is weeping and gnashing of teet his the wiscle of the combination county ticket was elected. And now there is weeping and gnashing of teet his the wisquants of the Tammany warriors; John Kelly the Grand Sachem is spending his time between rubbing of the war paint and feeling round to fun out whather he be awake or dreaming. It is the wisquants of the Tammany warriors; John Kelly the Grand Sachem is spending his time between rubbing of the war paint and feeling round to fun out whather he be awake or dreaming. It is the wisquants of the Tammany warriors; John Kelly the Grand Sachem is spending his time between rubbing of the war paint and feeling round to fun out whather he be awake or dreaming. It is the wisquants of the Tammany warriors; John Kelly the Grand Sachem is spending his paint and feeling round to fun out whather he be awake or dreaming. It is the whole of the combination county ticket was elected. And now there is weeping and gnashing of teet his the wisquants of the Tammany warriors; John Kelly the Grand Sachem is spending his paint and feeling round to fun out whather he be awake or dreaming. It is the whole of the combination county ticket was elected. And now there is weeping and gnashing of teet his the wisquants of the Tammany warriors; John Kelly the Grand Sachem is spending to the war paint and feeling round to fun out whather he be awake or dreaming. to his own satisfaction, but, as far as general now, we've got a good "Cooper." results are concerned, I rather think that the whole subject is very much where it has always been. During the conference many eloquent speeches were made, numerous learned papers were read, and some rather startling views were counciated; for instance, the Rev. Mr. McKay of Hull, England, said : "If when do some, that death is the coming of Christ, I would have scuttled the ship." Now if the reverend gentleman from Hull was merely indulging in hyperbole when he spoke thus, I fail to see his good taste; while if he really expressed his honest sentiments, then the fewer men such as he that are in Hull or out of it, the better for the welfare of humanity.

We have been having a series of destructive gales; the loss of life and property has been very great, and it would be scarcely any exaggeration to say that our coasts are literally strewn with wrecks. Death by shipwreck is a fate which always must command sympathy and pity, but sometimes there are attendant circumstances which increase the element of sadness, and show the ever dismal picture in even darker shades than usual. I know personally of just such a case. A young Captain belonging to Maine took the wife he had lately married with him on board the fine schooner which he commanded and partly owned. The OF ALL SHADES, IN LARGE AND SHALL schooner capsized in one of the recent gales, and the honeymoon of the young couple was terminated by the death from exposure of both of them upon the bottom of the vessel,

The leading sensation now is the fancy fair in the new cathedral of St. Patrick. The Cathedral is a noble structure of white granite, built in the gothic style; it has been slowly developing its stately proportions for the last twenty years, and is not finished yet. The work has been carried on in accordance with the condition of the fund, and the fair has been against with the view of replenishing the depleted reasony. Every evening the building is brilliantly Caminated, and ornamented with flags and devices of various kinds; the churches of the city are repreed, each one by a separate table, at which rare and beautiful articles may be purchased; crowds of the faithful press in nightly, and the fait is a grand adden, young, broathful, and, above all, persistent, extract one almost at every step to "take a chance." Postures, statuary, diamond rings, eliver services,—all these may be son by a lucky somehody, if that somebody has only listened to the appeal of the fair pleaders and taken "a chance." In fact at this senderful fair if once be only rich enough one can either buy anything, or gamble for anything, from a lady a picture was lately exstiful articles may be surchased : crowds of following is an instance. A picture was lately ex-hibited in the show window of a high-toned Broadway picture dealer, and attracted a good deal of attention. The picture was a water color copy of Makart's great historical painting of Charles the Fifth's Entry nto Antwerp. Walking before the Emperor's horse are three women in rather sount apparel, forming are three women to rather sound apparel, forming part of the procession and disrobed as a mark of submission and allegiance in accordance with a custom of the sixteenth century. Well, this picture was purchased by a Fulton Street confectioner who hung it in his show window, ignorantly supposing that what was all right in Broadway could not be a crime in Fulton Street. But he was mistaken; an officer of the Scriety for the Frevention of Vice happened to pass along, he saw the picture—saw only the semi-nude females—was shocked and ordered the picture immediately to be taken out of the window. This virtue lately to be taken out of the window. casely to be taken out of the window. This virtums efficer said that a crowd of boys, had gathered count the picture! Crowds of all kinds had gazed upon it white at the Broadway store and no one thought of interfering. The point of all this seems to be that the immurality of a picture depends, not upon the subject, but upon who it is that exhibits it; as before remarked, morality in New York, like ArteWandy little heavy is "increasing."

as before warrants, morally in New York, like Artames Ward's little bear, is "peccoliar."

I suppose on the whole that the world is getting better as it grows older, but occasionally cases of advideal deprayity crop up which might challenge any age for a parallel. Not long ago, a Public Administrator in California murdered a man for the perpose of administering the victim's estate. More recently a man and a woman in Connecticut invited an assuspecting saller friend to their residence and willed him in order to sell his body to a sollege. Among the curiosities of crime may be placed the stealing of the body of the late millionaire dry goods.

A T Stewart Great excitament was caused. man A. T. Stewart. Great excitement was caused of the morning of November 7th by the discovery that the want in St. Mark's church yard had been uponed and the body of Mr. Stewart carried off. The corpus when deposited in the vault was encased in an asken collin inside one of lead, and the whole melused in a strong wooden box. It appears that wild remore were affect at the time of the funeral, to the effect that a quantity of gold and silver articles were buried with the body, and some people suppose that these stories may have led to the descration of the touch. As a matter of fact, the only piece of precious metal about the coffin was the name plate, which was of silver. No doubt the chief motive for the state of the company would be the act was the hope that a liberal ransom would be offered for the return of the body, it being well known that Mrs. Stewart is building a cathefral in Garden her husband's remains.

A reward of twenty-five thousand dollars has been advertised for the recovery of the body, and the conviction of the thieves, but so far without result; the police have been unable to discover any definite clue, and the terms of the offer of course deter the guilty individuals from making any overtures. When Mrs. Stewart offers a good round sum without saying any-thing about conviction of the thievee she may be certain that she will soon get the body; a result which is very uncertain if she only trusts to the skill
